Digital Storytelling Workshop

Digital storytelling is a participatory media practice that provides an effective means for enabling communication, social and community learning. This program offers the Samford Commons community the skills to create and share their own stories.

What is a digital story?

A digital story typically:

- Combines:
 - 15-30 still (or short moving) images
 - a recorded script of 100-250 words
- Creates:
 - an original personal digital story in the form of a 2-3 minute digital video.

It is a form of co-creative media and utilises accessible and affordable technology.

Participants will learn how to...

- ✓ Craft a narrative
- ✓ Brainstorm ideas into an effective strategy for sharing with others
- ✓ Plan a story and short video
- ✓ Capture good quality video on a small digital device
- ✓ Capture quality audio
- ✓ Edit and distribute a story on various platforms.

About the facilitator

Dr Elizabeth Heck has facilitated digital storytelling and related co-creative media practice in both community and educational settings. She has recently completed a PhD exploring social learning and community uses of co-creative media in community media, arts and cultural contexts.

She has presented at national and international conferences, and has published journal articles and book chapters on the subject. In addition to this, she has facilitated workshops for professional development purposes.

Elizabeth runs a variety of digital media workshops, and in this storytelling workshop, she will guide you through crafting your own authentic story to share with the world. You will be introduced to narrative structure, pre-production and storytelling techniques, and effective ways to use the smartphone (or iPad or tablet) you carry around everyday as a storytelling device.
